The Hon. Charles H. Van Wyck was then introduced, and said:

SPEECH OF THE HON. CHARLES H. VAN WYCK.

Notwithstanding the off-repeated predictions and wishes of our political opponents, the Kepublican , arty is evidently not yet dead. It was born of the necessity of the hour; it sprang into existence finding an almost bankrupt Treasury, and the country without an Army or a Navy: it poured out its treasure and its blood as water, carrying the Old Fing to victory on a hundred battle-fields, finally saving the mation by re-baptizing it in blood. [Applause.] Such has been the history of the Republican party in the past, and yet its mission is not faily accomplished. The Democrate talk now of "routing out" the Republican party and Gen. Grant. Well, this reminds me of the story of two men who one day went a hunting "John" and "Jim" started out, and presently came upon a bear, which took to a swamp. John stationed himself in the roadway with a gin, and Jim went in, as he said, to rout out the bear. He penetrated the swamp, and soon he saw Bruin, and Mr. Bruin saw Jim. When he smelt Jim and saw him, he took after him. [Langhter.] And Jim, when he saw Bruin, started for the edge of the swamp, the bear gaining on him at every jump. Finally, as he swung round the circle frenewed langhter], and got near John, he called out, "John, John! get ready to shoot: I have routed out the bear:" [Great laughter.] So it is with these men: they have routed out Gen. Grant in the same way. [Laughter and applause.] There were timid men in the party to-day, said the speaker; but so there were in the army during the war. Such men said when the great criminal was arraigned for his crimes, "If this Republican party does not succeed in impeaching Andrew Johnson, then the Republican party is gone." Was it! No; as did the enemies in the field, it rose to a higher and a holter purpose. [Applause.] The Republican party is now within the shadow of another Appomattox tree. Grant is after them. [Applause.] These men co not like Grant. Oh, no; of cour and said:

[Cheers.] He thanked God that from one end to the other of the imits of this great Republic to there was no Wilkes Booth to rise up as the champion of the Republican party: [Hisses and appliause.] The Republican party resorted to no such base actions: It was reserved for those men to cause the death of Harrison and of Tayler. They had tried to murder Buchatan because Breckinridge was behind him to take the chair; and they had murdered the great Lincoin because Johnson was behind him to take the chair. It was strange that we'should be arguing the necessity at this time of electing the great captain of the age to the Presidency. The leaders of the Democracy were all committed to him. They were in the past. It was only a short time that they had declared him a patrot. The New Fork World had eulogized him. Andrew Johnson had eulogized him while he was acting Secretary of War, and the Democratic papers had repeated the eulogy. Was he not the same patriot to-day that he was when he roccived these eulogies? Why were these men arrayed against him and the Republican party. His audience had read the speech of Gov. Seymour delivered the other night, and it was there declared that they meant to undo the work of Congress in the reconstruction of the Southern States. They had no positive platform now but the work of destruction. They intended to roll back this wave of human progress, of civilization, of power; but they would find that they had not the power to turn back the hands on the dial of freedom. (Cheers.) The Democratic sympathies during the war; who ever knew, then, of Democratic sympathies during the war; who ever knew, then, of Democratic sympathies during the war; or of the soldiers in the field? To be sure, there were galiant men, noble men, who had been Democratic, but who loved their country better than their party; but they had to leave their party to serve their country. Mr. Van Wyck alluded to the soldiers who had had not a party but they had to leave their party to serve their country, when the sold that strongest of all affinities which could bind men, the that strongest of all affinities which could bind men, the affinity and affiliation of great principles, they would have created a sympathy in their behalf that when war had come for the deliverance of Ireland it would have been no childs play, but it would have recked the throne of England to the center and dashed it into the sea. [Cheers.] Emmett had said as he stood near the grave, "When my country takes her stand among the nations of the earth, then, and not till then, let my optaph be written. Emmett had been dead long years, and no one had dared to write his epitaph yet, because his request was cherished, in the till then, let my epitaph be written. Emmett had been dead long years, and no one had dared to write his epitaph yet, because his request was cherished in the memory of men, and with the Conservative Democratic party in power here, liberty, free and universal, would be checked in its advance throughout the world, and the time would never come to write Emmett's epitaph. [Cheers.] In closing, Mr. Van Wyck said: For your and my sakes, for ourselves and our posterity for all the world, we believed, and prayed, and hoped during that struggle for the principles of universal liberty and freedom for all men, without regard to color, without regard to coste, or to condition. And we believe we see it, although it may be far off in the future. It will come when the nations of the old world will look around them and smile upon a flag like ours, which not only symbolizes a greater refinement and intelligence, but is the emblem showing that the principles of American Independence have been established among the nations of the earth, and that all men and all people may sit under their ewn vine and fig-tree, and may look up and thank God for the blessings and privileges of liberty, and that there is no monarch nor throne to oppress them, but that they may look up to Heaven and know that there is no one above the people except the God who rules on earth and reigns in lieaven. [Applause]

After another stirring song by the Glee Club,

Mr. Spencer announced that the Club had assurance of Mr. Spencer announced that the Club had assurance of addresses before long by the Hon. B. F. Butler (cheers), and the Hon. E. M. Stanton. (Cheers.) The meeting then adjourned, giving rousing cheers en masse for Grant and Colfax.

THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

ARRIVAL OF DELEGATES - TAMMANY HALL -"THE REPUBLICAN NIGGER VOTER" FROM ALABAMA—SEYMOUR AND HENDRICKS WITH-DRAW-PENDLETON'S CHANCES-HOW CHASE STANDS-POLITICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

As the glorious Fourth approaches-the day hold their National Convention, henored in some slight degree, too, as the birthday of our independence-the tive and ultra-constitutional stripe become more and more active, and the ranks of the unterrified swell amazingly. Every thoroughfare now presents the lage on the day of a fair, or when the circus chariot is coming with its 16 Arabian horses, and its brass band, dressed in blue and gold, and led by the greatest living bugler. Every costume, from the outland brass band, dressed in blue and gold, and led by the greatest living bugler. Every costume, from the outlandish garb of our native women, with their awkward galt and their Greeian stoop, down to that of the unsophisticated backwoodsman of Oregon, may now be seen on our favorite promenade. Every corner is crowded with men from the North, the South, the East, the West; from New Jersey, and from Lehigh; from the Chickasahay country and from Expt; from the Pecutaligo district, and from the regions round about the Head of Sassafras, all arrayed in their best boughten clothes, and all agape with astorishment at the vastness of Gotham, the cleanliness of its streets, the number of its policeman, the beauty of its parks, the great size of its churches, and the overwhelming rush and crush of the wayfarers within its walls. Every well decked store window has its crowd of open mouthled rustics to set it off, and to take home with them in a few days the most exaggerated descriptions thereof. Every hotel is crowded, and every boarding-house within easy range of the artillery of Tammany Hall filled to repletion with homespun strangers blessed with vigorous appetites, destined, ere many days elapse, to be sadly affected, and to give place to premonitor ysymptoms of permanent gastrie disarrangement. Every sent at the cheap shows and subterranean cencert saloons is occupied, and where the ballet girls disport there are multitudes of truly rural sight-seers to whom the saltatory nymphs are veritable goldesses, and the buriliant, many-colored scenes so many views of a Paradise on earth wherein for the nonce but themselves and the hours dwell. Every ferry-boat bears its living frought of visiting Democrats to and from the little ham-rived yesterday. The majority at once sought quar-ters in hotels, boarding houses, and private residences, while many of the more precise and methodical first registered their names on the books of the Manhattan Ciub.

THE NEW-YORK PELECATION.

This delegation experienced a heavy typhoon yesterday. Probably no delegation to any National Convention was ever subjected to such a severe storm as that which the New-York delegates to the Tammany convocation of choice Democratic spirits were obliged to endure on the occasion referred to. On Thesday evening ex-Gov. Horatio Seymour authorized a friend to state to the New-York delegation that he had resolved not to be a candidate under any circumstances. Accordingly, when the delegation assembled, vesterday, in room No. 333, St. Nicholas Hotel, this important piece of information was duly conveyed to the representative Democrats by Gov. Seymour's trustee. Mr. August Belmont called the delegation to order, and the Hon. Samuel J. Thiden was appointed Chairman pro temport. Charles Wheatleigh was chosen Secretary. As soon as the announcement of Gov. Seymour's idetermination was made to the meeting a hub-bub of the most delightful nature ensued. A motion was made to accept Chase as the first choice of the delegation. This attempt to force the meeting to accept a candidate failed, however, but not until a very hot discussion was induiged in. The Western New-York delegates were almost unanimously in favor of making Pendleton the first choice of the delegation. Others had a leaning toward Hendricks, and some were disposed to stand by Seymour to the last as a "matter of fidelity to New-York's greatest statesman." After considerable discussion the meeting united on any man as the favorut having united on any man as the favorut having united on any man as the favorut having united on any man, and will throw their votes when and where interest may suggest. Some changes in the delegations have been made. Angust Belmont has been substituted for Charles E. Loew, in the VIIth District.

WITHERANAL OF SENATOR HENDRICKS.

triet, and A. A. Hunt for Charles Goodycar, in the XIVth District.

WITHDRAWAL OF SENATOR HENDRICKS.

Senator Hendricks, whose stock on Tuesday seemed to be rapidly acquiring par value, has withdrawn from the contest for the nomination. A letter from him was yesterday received by the Indiana delegation in which he peremptorily declines to be a candidate under any circumstances. In this letter he carnestly requests the delegation not to present his name to the Convention, and not to allow it to be used in connection with the candidacy. On receiving this letter a meeting of the delegation was held at the Fifth-ave. Hotel, and a resolution adopted pledging the full delegation to the support of Pendleton. The Indiana delegates will therefore stand by Pendleton as long as Ohio does the same. The withdrawal of Senator Hendricks's name was the cause of much gossip at the headquarters of the various State delegations yesterday, and it was generally conceded that the retirement of the Senator added greatly to the strength of Pendleton. No arrivals from Indiana yesterday.

THE NATIONAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

The members of this Committee were the recipients of Mr. Belmont's hospitality has evening, that gentleman having invited them to assemble at his residence for the purpose of transacting some business relative to the issuing of tickets of admission to the Convention. No other business of importance was transacted. It was resolved to allow each delegate six tickets for distribution among his friends.

CHASE.

to allow each delegate six tickets for distribution among his friends.

CHASE.

The Chase mercury in the Democratic thermometer dropped yesterday almost to zero. A great change came over the spirit of the Southern delegations. A member of one of these delegations assured the writer that the delegates from the South had been greatly misled. "Why," said he, "I supposed that Chase was not only the strongest man, but that his nomination was a foregone conclusion; and that is the reason why we Southern men have come here with the expectation of going for Chase. As the matter stands, however, I think I can speak for the Southern delegations when I say that Pendleton will receive aimost their united support in the Convention. There may be some votes cast for Hancock, but they won't amount to much—not enough even to build a hope upon." There is no doubt that the delegates from the Southern States will go into the Convention prepared to stand by Pendleton and work for his nomination.

OHIO.

The Eith Avenue Hotel is inundated with the Ohio

Pendicton and work for his nomination.

OHIO.

The Fifth Avenue Hotel is inundated with the Ohio Democracy. It is overflowing with Fendictonianism. In fact it would seem that its proprietors have turned every guest out of their hotel except the fortunate individual who is a duly accredited Ohioan. Yesterday a meeting of the Ohio delegation, whose headquarters are at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, was held, and organized by electing Col. George W. McCook Chairman. No business of importance was transacted, and the meeting adjourned until noon to day. Judge Thurman, who has been chosen to succeed Ben Wade as Senator from Ohio, arrived yesterday afternoon, accompanied by a large number of Pendictongans, who had no sooner reached the headquarters of their state delegation than they at once began to assist in carrying on the war in behalf of Pendicton. All of these men are confident that their favorite will be the choice of the Convention, and some of them are prepared to bet heavily on that result.

BASSACHUSETTS.

From Massachusetts have arrived U. S. Wills, and one or two other delegates. Mr. Wills stops at the New-York Hotel, and the others are boarding around.

None of the Rhode Island delegates arrived at the Mon-man House yesterday, nor did any register at the Man-battan Club.

The following named delegates have arrived, and are scattered promisenonsly: W. T. Thompson, J. G. Evans, P. R. Simmons, Win. A. Reed, and Win. Hill, both members of the Hill family of Georgia. The headquarters of the delegation will be at the Chanler House, but if as many more of the Hills come on as are expected the Chanler House will prove unequal to the occasion, and some of the family must be eaten washed, and slept some of the family must be eaten, washed, and slept elsewhore.

At last advices, but few new arrivals from this State had swelled the list of Democratic patriots at the hotels. The Chairman of the delegation, J. H. Claunton, is still at the Metropolitan, while ex-Gov. John A. Winston remains at the St. Nicholas. The latter, Colonel of the 6th Alabama Infantry during the Rebellion, is now entirely reconstructed, and is a strong advocate for Hancock. One of the new-comers brought with him yesterday a poor, idotte negro, one of the many victims of the old-time divine institution, who is to be introduced to the Convention as a specimen "Republican voter from Alabama." Time was, perhaps, when the now searred and maimed carcase of the whilom slave was as perfect in form as that of the master who brutalized it, or that of the man who would now, to serve a base purpose, exhibit it for the annisement of a heartless crowd. May be the poor negro once had brain power which, if rightly governed, might have marked him as the intellectual equal of any ex-traitor in the Convention or out of it. But whether nature endowed the man with mind, or whether she sent him into the world without, matters #tile. His body hears the marks of torture sufficient to crush the brightest mind. The marks of the whip are upon it, and the vacant stare and the idotic grin at which the Democratic delegates will laugh may be only the results of a course of trentment for which the slaveholding medicine.

of the Convention.

MISSOURI.

A. Wells, Thos. Donglas, and C. W. Ewlord arrived yesterday, and registered their names at the Manhattan Club. They will probably stop at the Spingler House.

MISSISSIPPI.

Gen. E. M. Yerger, President of the first Constitutional Convention of Mississippi, and Chairman of the Mississippi has his headquarters at the Everett House, on Union-square. With him are E. C. Waithall and W. S. Featherstone, delegates at large, and R. M. Brown and S. N. Jones, district delegates. Their alternates now here are F. Labanne; George Wood, and W. H. McCaudle.

W. H. McCaudie.

No arrivals since our last report, except that of Wm. Osborn and L. T. Smith, who are at the Fifth-ave.

ARRANSAS.

None of the delegates from Arkansas have arrived. They will put up at the New-York Hotel.

A large number of prominent Pennsylvania Democrats are in the city pulling wires for their respective favorites, but none of the delegates arrived yesterday. They will all support Gov. Packer on the first ballot, but will give way for Pendleton when they find, as they certainly will, that there is no chance for their candidate.

MicHigan.

The headquarters of the Michigan delegation will be at the St. Nicholas. Robert McClellan, late Secretary of the Interior, a delegate at large, is at the Astor House, as are also H. Hayden and Peter B. Austen, from the ILLINOIS.

The following delegates from Illinois arrived at the Fifth ave. Hotel yesterday: M. C. Clernand, A. Schwartz, J. L. Mulrod, William M. Springer, S. T. Dresser, George Carpenter, William C. Wood, Elias Wengen, S. V. Arnold, John S. Wheeler, William R. Russell, J. T. Williams, R. F. Denton, Wilbur F. Story.

TEXAS.

The headquarters of the delegates from this State are at the St. Julian Hotel. Of their number the following have arrived: the Hon. John Hamcock, Ashbel Smith, Gov. F. S. Stockdale, Judge G. W. Smith, J. J. Smith, Jules Randle, and R. L. Fulton. The delegation have held no formal meeting for permanent organization, but will probably meet to-day and elect a chairman. Although they came to this city resolved to urge the claims of Gen. Hancock, it is understood that their final vote will be given for Fendicton.

In addition to the delegates from this State whose arrival was announced in yesterday's Trinusse, the following named delegates reached the headquarters of the delegation, at the St. Julian Hotel, yesterday; Samuel H. Fairall, T. S. Bardwell, and W. F. Brennan. They are all Pendleton men.

this State, arrived yesterday. The headquarters of the delegation are at the Chanier House.

THE FACIFIC DELEGATION.

No additional arrivals of members of these delegations occurred yesterday. A meeting of the Californian delegation was held in the morning, but no pormanent organization was effected.

NEW HAMPSHIEE AND VERMONT.

The delegations from these States will make their headquarters at the Everett House. The delegates are expected to arrive to-day.

A STUMI-ER.

During the excitement at the Fifth-ayenue Hotel yesterday a delegate from Green County, Indiana, entertained a promiscuous crowd by delivering a few brief remarks. He said he was for Pendiston, and said he, "I want these Wall-St. Yorkers to understand that they may talk about paying off the National debt in gold as much as they like, but if they get the West to agree to it they'll have to be a d—d sight smarter than I think they are. Now, I'm from Indianny, I am, and I go in for a greenback policy. That's me. And I want these Wall-St. Yorkers to know what I'm going to tell 'em, and which is this, that if they haist on paying the debt in gold the Great West will rise up in her might before a year is past and demand an instant repudiation of the National Debt. [Applause.] And I'll tell them further—that we Western folks know what we're about, even if we are in New-York, where the blandishments of Wall-st. are spread all around and over us." [Applause.] It was no piace, nor was it an occasion, for a Wall-st. broker with gold-paying proclivities to manifest his presence, and no response was made to the eloquent remarks of the gentleman from Indiana—Greene county.

A COMBINATION.

Knowing ones assert that New-York, Pennsylvania, New-Jersey, and the New-England States have been working hard to effect a combination, the object being the defeat of Pendleton. This scheme, however, it is believed, will fail, inasmuch as in each of the delegations composing this combination Pendleton has friends who are among his most enthusiastic admirers and most indeferticable advocates.

fatigable advocates.

Gossip.

Among the few delegates who arrived yesterday were E. L. Bristow and George L. Curry of the Oregon delegation, who are at Earle's; and F. A. Frost and George E. Peebles of the Georgia delegation, at the same house. The Chairmen of the Wisconsin, the Alabama, and the Missouri delegations are at the Metropolitan, and the Chairman of the Pennsylvania delegation, at the Hoffman House.

House.

It is said that strong ground will be taken against the admission of Miss Susan B. Anthony as a delegate at large to represent the interests of American women in the Convention; but as that lady's ticket is already, "impeticosed," and as she has a will of her own, and a number of brawny friends who will not see her deprived of her rights as a publisher, a woman, and an American citizen, it may be inferred that Miss Anthony will take seat in due form, and will make herself heard when her turn comes. One plank of the platform, it is said, will bear a hearty

One plank of the platform, it is said, will bear a hearty protest against such sanitary regulations for Democratic cities as the odious Excise haw of New-York. In another there will be a bitter pill for Petroleum V. Nashy to swallow. Herein he is accredited as a very devoted, but very indiscreet Democrat, who has injured the prospects of his party by writing articles which have found favor in the eyes of Radical Republicans.

Hendricks and Seymour having withdrawn, the candidates for nomination whose names will be presented to the Convention are S. P. Chase, George H. Pendieton, ex-Gov. Juel Parker of New-Jersey, Judge Stephen J. Field of California, Asa Packer of Pennsylvania, Frank P. Blair, jr., of Missouri, and Andrew Johnson. For Vice-President, ex-Gov. Bigler of Pennsylvania and Gov. English of Connecticut will be strongly urged.

English of Connecticut will be strongly urged.

THE ORGANIZATION.

Although nothing definite is known relative to the organization of the Convention, it is quite probable that the Hon. W. W. Eaton of Hartford, Conn., will be the temporary chairman. For permanent chairman, ex-Gov. Bigler of Pennsylvania, Gov. Stephenson of Kentucky, Gen. McCiernand, and W. A. Eichardson of Ilinois (the latter well known as "Old Fighting Dick"), are spoken of. Gov. Bigler will probably be chosen. He was present at the Fifth Avenue yesterday, as was also senator Doolittle. Gov. Bigler is also talked of as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency. Ex-Gov. Seymout is also spoken of for the permanent Chairmanship, a position which the New-York delegation will demand for him if he should positively refuse to have his name presented to the Convention as a contectant for the Presidential nomination.

the Convention as a contestant for the Presidential nomination.

THE SEATS.

The seats in the hall in which the Convention is to meet are placed in three rows, consisting of a center row, a right wing and a left wing. The positions of the delegations will be as follows:

RIGHT WING—Virginia, 20 seats: North Carolina, 18; Pennsylvania, 52; Ohio, 42; Iowa, 15; Mississippi, 14; Maryland, 14; Minnesota, 8; New-Jersey, 14; Mississippi, 14; Waryland, 16; Connecticut, 12.

CENTRE—Texas, 12 seats; Vermont, 10; Massachusetts, 24; Alabama, 16; South Carolina, 12; Louisiana, 14; Wisconsin, 16; New-Hampshire, 10; New-York, 65.

LEFT WING—Maine, 14; Florida, 6; Kentucky, 22; Delaware, 6; Indiana, 26; Nebraska, 6; Kansas, 6; Nevada, 6; Tennessee, 20; Illinois, 32; Rhode Island, 8; Michigan, 16; Arkansas, 10; Oregon, 6; Califorma, 10; Georgia, 18.

The Soldiers and Sailors.

The National Executive Committee of the Union Sol diers' and Sailors' Organization bave announced their programme, and James McQuade or Troy signs it. The soldiers and sailors of this organization will all hold fast to Hancock until a more available candidate is presented. The following is a list of their more prominent delegates: Brig. Gen. McQuade, N. Y.; Brevet Brig.-Gen. B. P. Walser, Brovet Brig.-Gen. Kelly S. Smith, Washington, Major-Gen. Gordon Granger, Philadelphia; Cot. L. B. Campbell, N. Y.; Major-Gen. John B. BURLINGTON, July L.-The Union Republicans of Vermont held their State Convention here to-day. Major William Rounds of Chester, was chosen President, and one Vice-President was appointed from each County. The incumbents of State offices were renominated by acclamation, to wit: John B. Page of Rutland, for Governor; Stephen Thomas of West Fairle, for Lieut-Governor; John A. Page of Montpelier, for Treasurer; G. W. Grandey of Vergennes, and Horace Fairbanks of St. Johnsbury, were nominated for electors at large; G. W. Grandey, W. G. G. Benedict, B. D. Harris, Redfield Proctor, Rossville Farham, S. Epingree, W. W. Groat, and D. R. Balley, were reappointed as the State Committee. The Committee on Resolutions reported a resolution approving the nomination of Grant and Colfax, applauding the platform adopted at Chicago, and asserting that a republican government is the only one in which all people have equal civil and political rights. The Convention was addressed by T. W. Peck, chairman of the Vermont delegation to Chicago; C. W. Willard, Gen. Stephen Thomas, and E. C. Reddington. A resolution was adopted urging a thorough canvass of the State, in order to secure a larger Republican majority than ever before at the Sep-tember election. The Convention was harmonious and

No. 150, for July 4, (Published this day) COMMENCES THE EIGHTH VOLUME OF THE ROUND TABLE, A SATURDAY REVIEW OF POLITICS, FINANCE, LITERATURE, BOCIETY, AND ART.

From The New York Tribune, June 25, 1852.

"We want a good weekly paper, whose essays shall be well considered, yet abort and entertaining; which shall combine the careful and judicial character of the review with the sprightlines of the daily journal; which shall discuss fearlessly the problems of politics, and touch with graceful pen the current topics of literature, art, science, and seivety—a paper, is fine, like The London Spectator, only a trifle more lively, or like The Saundray Review, but with more variety and less cyutisms.

"A good, high-toned, literary paper such as we have described we have never had yet. There have been several attempts to found such a publication, but they seem not to have been made by the right persons, or made in the right war, and the result has always been failure. This paper is alumberous, that is flippant; one is too redelent of musty libraries, another is accusted with the fumes of the been-cellar. Here you have a periodical as wise as Soion, as ponderous as Dr. Bryasdust, as soieum as the owls of Minerva; and here another, which the callow brains of undergraduates have silled with screeds about nothing and trivial compositions on metaphysics and astronomy. His not with such reading as this that thinking men want to occupy their hours of leisure. The literary journal thinking men want to occupy their hours of leisure. The literary journal. The Round Table was just such as good justral would in the declever critician on H. G. which a few weeks ago we copied."

"The Tribune says there is great need for a good literary weekly journal. The Round Table was just such as good journal until it had the clever critician on H. G. which a few weeks ago we copied."

Kitzact from the Proceedings of the Georgia flistorical Society, Savaenach and the same and that there had been some talk with reference to The Round Table, a literary paper published in New York, and some of the members were desirous of having it introduced in the city, and sepecially among the members of the Society. Extract from a letter of the late Fitz Greene Halleck, dated Oct. 28, 1967.

"I vaine The Round Table very highly todeed. It equals The London Spectator, and excels The London Saturday Review. If persectered in, it will create and command its own public to a short time—a public composed of our most intelligent classes—of those to whom the purely, or rather impurely. "The only journal which adequately represents American education and culture."

From Tribner's Literary Record, London.

"The New-Fork Round Table is the best literary paper published in the United States. It is independent, outspaken, free from anything like favoritism, and we believe totally inaccessible to corrupt influences."

From The Angle-American Times, London.

"It comes nearer to the standard of excellence attained by the chief London weakles than the New-Fork daily press does to that of the leading London dailles. It is characterized by the strongest and freest expression of truth; commenting without fear on social, political, and moral delinquencies."

"This paper combines all the piquancy and variety of the best weeklies with the dignity and learning which belong to a quasterly review. We have no hesitation in expressing the opinion that it is the best literary paper, in all senses, published in the whole of the United States."

"The Round Table has become such a weekly journal as has been for a long time needed in the United States—a journal which has the gening and learning and brilliancy of the higher order of London weeklies, and which, at the same time, has the spirit and the instincts of America."

eral gentlemen present, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we, representing the different branches of trade interested in house-building, do heartily concur in the action taken by the Master Masons against the Right-Hour system, the restrictions about apprentices, and oppressive rules of the Workingmen's Unions generally, and that we pledge our moral and material aid to sustain them; and recommend that a meeting of the different branches of house-builders be called for the purpose of coloperating with and encouraging the Masons in their opposition to the demands of the Bricklayers Union.

Resolved, That a Committee of Six, representing different trades, be appointed to wait upon Owners, and ask their support in behalf of the Masons by extending the time agreed for the completion of their buildings.

Resolved, That when we adjourn, we adjourn to meet on TUESDAT, July 7, and that the different representatives call a meeting of their suscitates, and report upon the action taken by them to this meeting, to be held at the same place at a o'clock p. m.
